

Here is a story where no good deed can go unpunished... well, hopefully there's a teaching moment in there somewhere! Enjoy.

The Headline:

Teacher Donates Prize Winnings to School... Then Gets in Trouble For It!

The storyline: A Massachusetts teacher showed her caring nature when she won an essay contest and donated the $100,000 prize money (yes, you read that right) back to her school.

Now an investigation is underway to see if the teacher's gift is an ethics violation. The big twist is that the teacher was honored on the popular talk-show, Ellen, where additional prizes were given to the teachers and students at the school.

The bottom line is that accepting these gifts might be out of line for the school, no matter how much they are needed or deserved!
